PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Dear Colleagues,

It is a great pleasure to welcome you to the XXIX Meeting of the International Clinical Hyperthermia Society in Cologne in Germany. The meeting will take place at the Mercure Hotel Severinshof. The German Society for Hyperthermia and I are proud, that we got the opportunity to organize this meeting. We know it is necessary to discuss about hyperthermia - the scientific basis and clinical applications. It is particularly necessary for better benefits for our patients with their fight for better prognosis in cases of cancer diseases.

We are glad that the ICHS will take on more activities in future than there have been in the past. We thank Dr. Bicher and the board, especially Dr. Nagraj Huligo as Past President and Prof. Dr. Mitagvaria as Future President for the next meeting in Tbilisi, Georgia, in 2011.

It is the possibility to continue the work with colleagues in order to develop the Hyperthermia in all parts of the world for our patients. Never before were the prospects of hyperthermia as promising as today. It is very important to keep in mind that the aspects of the patients are the center of our medical work.

Once more, ICHS-Meetings offer the possibilities for social meetings between colleagues and friends of hyperthermia. We can discuss our observations and experiments, about experiences, about thoughts without authority and examination without prejudice.

Last, but not least, Cologne is a interesting city with culture, trade, industries and tradition. For the guests from different countries it is a good impression about Germany. The public transportation is well organized and the journey for our guests and colleagues should be without problems. Cologne has a big rail station and an airport.

I believe that the next step of the ICHS - the XXIX Meeting - will be successful. I hope that we can continue this work regularly in the future and I am happy that we already know the next meeting will be in Georgia. Together we can achieve a better foundation for the work with hyperthermia.

I will be delighted to welcome you in Cologne.

Sincerely,
Professor, Dr. Holger Wehner
President, ICHS
